Eisenberg – 230 Hollywood Xing – Two story side and front addition and interior alterations to residence. Mr. Leonard W. Mr. Jacobs and the Board Members discussed the new and existing finish materials to be used and matched on the house and the home owners color choices. Mr. Jacobs explained that the existing light blue Dutch lap siding on the home was being removed and replaced with new siding and the old existing elevator shaft on the front of the home would be removed also. Mr. Jacobs explained that the owners were attempting to soften the look of the home. Member Pomerantz asked if the addition of shutters was considered in the design. Mr. Jacobs explained that the issue was do all windows get shutters? Due to the fact that the size, placement and spacing of the windows would limit which windows could have shutters. The Board discussed the addition of shutters to the windows, the Board Members where split on the idea of adding shutters. The Board also discussed if grills should be added to the windows. Mr. Jacobs explained that in place of installing shutters a larger trim would be installed around the windows and the existing windows on the home had no grills to divide the window glass.

It was the general consensus of the Board that the house presently was lacking any kind of character and needed some embellishments. Mr. Jacobs explained that the existing home was a mixture of several additions with different interior levels and a mix of cottage style and casement windows which would not be changed by the proposed addition and explained further that the present addition was an attempt to keep the overall design simple. Member Staiman suggested that possibly adding some embellishments to the existing porch might improve the overall look of the design? Alternate Member Weinstock questioned if the existing front porch on the home would be changed? Mr. Jacobs explained that the existing porch was staying, the idea being to change as little as possible. Member Staiman asked if detail could be added to the existing porch.

Alternate member Weinstock asked if brackets could be added to the existing porch and what style of home would be achieved with the addition? Mr. Jacobs explained that Victorian style brackets could be added to the porch but the proposed style that the design wanted to achieve for the home was the grand American farm house, a simple design for a simply styled home. The Board Members and Mr. Jacobs discussed the right side elevation of the proposed addition. The Board continued to discuss adding detail to the existing front porch columns, the colors chosen for the home and the simple style for the home. No one else appeared before the Board to support or oppose the application. A motion was made by Member Pomerantz to approve the application for the proposed addition with the following conditions; 1) The applicant must submit final color choices for the house for the Board to review, 2) Submit a drawing of a possible bracket to be added to the existing front porch columns. The motion was seconded by Member Staiman with the following votes cast: Member Weinstock yes, Member Staiman yes, Chairman Sporn yes and Member Pomerantz yes.
